Dear Harold

Here is the copy of the two paragraphs you wanted me to give to Jimmy Lesar on Saturday. I relayed the subject matter to him, but not in detail, as he was simply whirling with things to do. If you wish it to be retyped let me know. I will do it. If you want me to do up your press release let me have it and I shall be putting it in a consistent format. Perhaps the total would make a good mailer or stuffer or have other uses. Never Again is a good book.

I got home in the mid afternoon without any problems at all, except I did not leave enough time to make the airport and had to rush. I could not take the time to fill the gas tank and had to be charged $3.24 per gallon by Hertz, [this seems impossible to be true, but it is] who had a rapid check in and transport that made it possible to reach the flight gate on time. I had gotten behind one of Maryland's finest trucks hauling lumber that would not speed up to the limit and I could not pass. Strange.

Elaine has made a spot for the Tabler peony.

I have a nice batch of notes from the week end. I am going over them.

While your commentaries on Newman's piece of corruption are good and my looking and listening etc. makes it impossible not be the case, it still boggles my sense of logic that a man could do this wretch of a work. I do not recall anything on the subject shocking me so much than this corruption. As soon as I can clear my desk of the trivial things and tail ends of commitments from the University I intend to be writing on the JFK.

This week end I shall be in Elaine's hometown attending a wedding of her neice. They really do these sort of family affairs up right.

Thanks again,

D Wrone
